HIGH SCHOOL TRANSITION GUIDE
Continuing Your Red Cross Journey After High School

As you look forward to a new and exciting chapter in your life, we want you to know that there are many opportunities to keep volunteering with the Red Cross after you graduate high school, regardless of where you may be or how your commitments change.

Starting college?
If you’re enrolling in a college or university, join or start a collegiate Red Cross Club! Your high school Red Cross Club experiences will help you excel at the collegiate level.

Find your new collegiate Club here:
Click here for a listing of Red Cross Clubs by state.

No Club at your college? Start one!
Refer to the comprehensive Club in a Box toolkit here and find other resources on the “How to Start a Red Cross Club” page of RedCrossYouth.org linked here.

Looking for collegiate Red Cross leadership opportunities?
Take your involvement to the next level with the National Collegiate Assembly! Help lead a national network of collegiate Red Cross Clubs. Find out more here.

Heading to a new city?
Contact your new region to make sure your account is transferred in Volunteer Connection.

Find your new local Red Cross Region
Click here and enter your ZIP code to connect with your new region.

Staying close to home?
If you’re staying in the area, your region would love to keep you on board as a volunteer. Just make sure your contact information is up-to-date in Volunteer Connection.

Low on time because of new commitments?
There are still many ways you can still be involved in the Red Cross as a volunteer.

Find new volunteering opportunities available to you as you turn 18
